GENESIS

THE ORIGINAL ADVENTURE BICYCLE BRAND

If you had to sum up Genesis in one phrase, it might be that we try to build bikes without boundaries. We think that when you buy a bike you should be able to take it wherever you want to go; if you're out and want to take that gravel path, why not? You shouldn't have to come back tomorrow with a different bike, adventure is meant to be spontaneous and the limiting factor should be your imagination, not what you're riding.

That was the philosophy that created the original adventure bike in the Croix de Fer. It's a bike that defined the adventure riding genre and was arguably the first gravel bike ever created back before gravel was the trendiest word in cycling. Nearly 15 years on and the CdF is still going strong, with the most comprehensive range we've made topped by the magnificent CdF 50 built around a Reynolds 853 frame and a carbon fork. If you want to explore and do it in style, the CdF is still very much the bike to have.

Then there's the CDA, which takes everything there is to love about the CdF and wraps it into an alloy package and the Fugio, a bike that's still unique in its ambition. Half drop bar bike, half MTB, the Fugio is as ready for trails as it is tarmac and you'll struggle to find terrain that it can't tackle.

One new category for Genesis is EBikes. We've taken our classic Smithfield and Columbia Road models and turned them into super stylish pedal-assisted bikes that are perfect machines for urban mobility. Getting around town in style has never been easier. So, take five minutes, grab yourself a coffee, flick through this catalogue and imagine the possibilities. We know you love bikes like we love bikes so let's figure out together how to make this your most adventurous year yet.

Gravel & Adventure

If you like to get out on a bike and go wherever your imagination takes you then you've come to the right place. Genesis is the original adventure brand and we love to make bikes that support your ambitions. Our bikes have been ridden all over the world – and all around the world quite literally – so they're ready for whatever you want to throw at them.

Right now, we have the strongest Croix de Fer range ever, with seven complete bikes – including two flat bar options – and four framesets topped by the Croix de Fer Ti for anyone who wants the ultimate adventure dream build.

There is also the Fugio, a bike that's so ready for anything that anything won't know what hit it. Ever thought about running full on trail tyres on a drop bar bike? Well, you can now and combine that with the dropper post that comes as standard on the Fugio 30 and you have possibly the most capable curly-bar bike on the planet.

Precious Metals

We're not material snobs here at Genesis. We believe you can make brilliant bikes from steel, aluminium, carbon or titanium – and that's exactly what we try to do.

We are, however, very particular about making sure that the materials we use are the very best available to us. Whether we're making frames with our own Mjølner Chromoly, Reynolds 931 or 853 tubesets or even the stunning 3AL-2.5V double-buttet titanium, we choose the best materials for the job.

That's the only way we can be sure the bike is as good as it can possibly be.

We're proud to say that Reynolds has played a major part in how our bikes and ranges have developed over time. For over ten years we've worked closely with their engineers to utilise beautiful and high-functioning tubesets that have made bikes like the Croix de Fer and Volare possible.

Touring & Bikepacking

Bike Touring is one of those tried-and-tested British traditions, and Bikepacking is principally bike touring brought up to date for a generation that have tents you can carry on a bike rather than towing a trailer full of canvas. But one thing doesn't change, and that is what a touring or bikepacking bike needs to be. Tough, is the answer.

If you're off touring you need something with racks on racks, that can carry the load so you don't have to and won't buckle under that burden halfway to your destination. Our Tour de Fer range are fully outfitted from the outset with exactly what you need.

Guess what? That's what our bikepacking bikes do too. The Vagabond and Longitude might differ in their tyre sizes, bar types or various other details but they're both designed to eat up mile after mile and long for more. If you want to travel around by bike, then Genesis has your back.

Urban Utility

Urban bikes are the real unsung heroes of the cycling world. They're the bikes that are getting used every day, rain or shine, to take people where they need to go and they have to be reliable, practical and ready for anything.

But that doesn't mean they have to be dull, and we've made sure that all our urban bikes have the same infusion of style that you expect when you choose Genesis.

The Brixton and Broadway are classic town bikes, one with a slant towards cargo and the other a classic cruiser. Both are just as at home getting you from A to B as they are sat outside a café for a well-earned break.

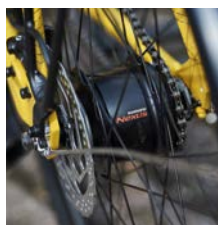

The other two bikes in the range are the Flyer and Day One, both of which are built for urban mobility but with a few adventure-oriented finishing touches that let you know you're on a Genesis. WTB All Terrain 37C tyres mean that you're equally at home cutting through a park as you are rolling down the street so don't be afraid to take the quickest route to wherever you need to be.

eBikes

There's a reason that EBikes are one of the fastest growing categories in cycling: they're fun. And when you combine that fun with the practicality of being able to get around easily then you're onto a winner.

Our EBikes are designed for exactly that: helping you to get about easily but without arriving at the other end looking like you've ridden to get there. Got a meeting but need to ride? No problem. You won't break a sweat on an EBIke. Oh, and you want to do it in style, too? Don't worry, Genesis has your back there as well.

If we do say so ourselves, the Smithfield and Columbia Road combine the latest EBIke tech with timeless good looks and our renowned steel tubing to make for a pair of the most attractive yet practical bikes on the market. Check them out and we're sure you'll agree.
